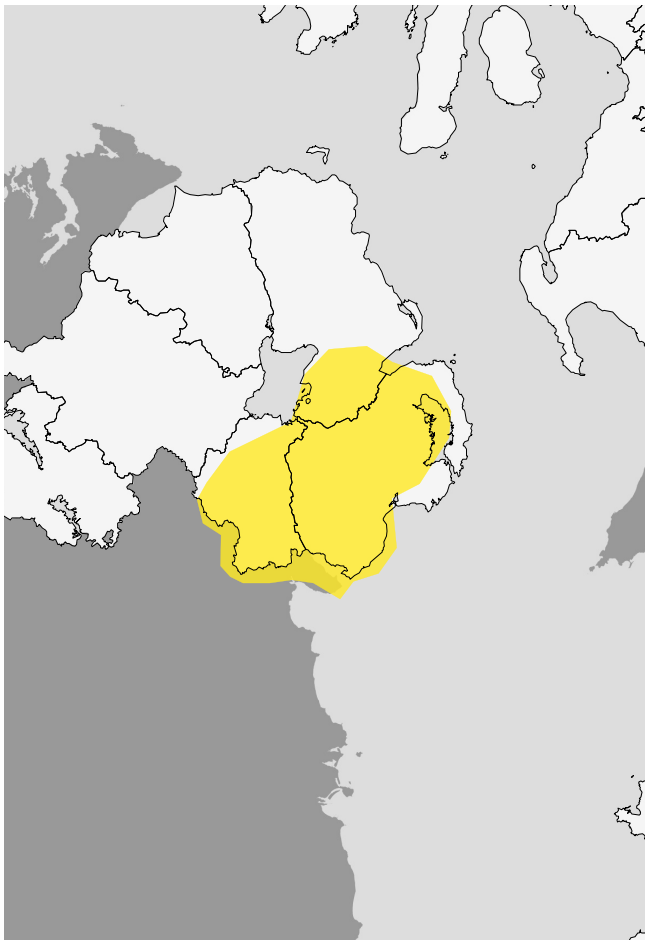
Yellow warning
Snow & Ice

Between
16:00 Tue 9 Feb 2021 and
11:00 Wed 10 Feb 2021



Scattered snow showers blowing in from the Irish Sea may cause minor travel disruption due to snow and ice.

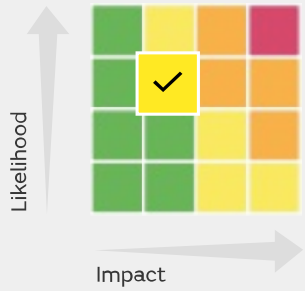
What to expect

- A few roads and railways likely to be affected leading to delays and longer journey times
- Some injuries from slips and falls on icy surfaces
- Probably some icy patches on some untreated roads, pavements and cycle paths

Further details

Showers blowing inland from the Irish Sea are likely to produce some slight accumulations (1-3 cm), whilst falling as rain or sleet near the immediate coast.

The largest accumulations during daylight hours will likely be confined to higher ground (above 200 m). Below this, freezing of wet snow through the evening is likely to cause some icy stretches which could then become snow covered overnight. Not everywhere will see these showers, and accumulations are expected to be patchy in nature.



Medium likelihood of low impacts
